To Whom It May Concern:

Sean Sweeney was employed by our firm as a Programmer/Analyst from March, 2004 to May, 2005. He was also previously employed from November, 2000 until February, 2003 (approximately 4 years total).

Sean is a highly competent web application programmer with experience in both C#/.NET development and ASP scripting. He completed a number of large and technically complex projects while employed by us.

As a Systems Analyst, Sean is able to translate complex client requirements into elegant system designs, taking the process from concept to completed scope documents.

He also possesses excellent verbal and written communication skills, which I consider rare among programmers. He is able to effectively convey technical information and requirements to clients and colleagues.

He is a team player who gets along well with all of his co-workers. He has a bright personality and a great sense of humor.

Regretfully, we had to let Sean go purely for economic reasons. We suffered a devastating loss of revenues due to the financial failure of our largest client. I consider Sean not only a valued member of my staff, but a personal friend as well. I am sorry to see him go.

I enthusiastically recommend Sean for a job in web application programming, systems analysis or any position for which you require a smart, dedicated team player who is ready to move your organization forward.

Sincerely,
